Prospects Dim For Holding a Summit Meeting

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
CHENEVIA (AP)—American officials said today prospects appear dim for the Soviet Union and the Western powers reaching any agreement on Berlin and Germany at the current Big Four foreign ministers conference.

Advisers of Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, expect the Soviet to launch a propaganda offensive blaming the West for failure of the talks and marshalling world pressure for a summit conference anyway.

There is a possibility the Western foreign ministers may seek a recess at their conference and leave the way open to get together again.

President Eisenhower has made plain that he has no intention of meeting Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev unless the foreign ministers show enough progress to justify a heads-of-government conference.

With sessions of the foreign ministers recessed over the weekend, the showdown is expected to come early next week.

The French reportedly share the gloom of the Americans about chances of success. But the British cling to a hope that the Soviets might back down on demands the West get out of Berlin and seek an interim agreement to lift the crisis surrounding the divided city.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd flew to London Friday night to see Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, who is the leading advocate in the West for a summit conference.

"I think we have got to be patient," Lloyd told newsmen on arriving at London airport. "We have got to be firm about essentials but nevertheless patient about the regulations."

Should Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko stand firm when talks resume on Monday, the conference may break up by midweek.

Herter, Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville could prefer a recess rather than an adjournment if a break became necessary. They could then reassemble sometime in the future without the need to set up a completely new meeting.

A recess for a definite time might be fixed, providing the Soviets agree. There has been talk of setting it three weeks to two months or more.

Nixon's Idea on Democratic Possibilities

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who may be a candidate for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination, has some ideas about Democratic possibilities.

He was asked at a Commonwealth Club banquet Thursday night if he would care to name the two leading Democratic candidates. Grinning broadly, he replied.

"It's fashionable nowadays for candidates to comment on candidates of other parties. This I hesitate to do. I don't want to hurt any candidate I like by naming him as my favorite. Nor do I wish to help another by saying he might lose."

Then he proceeded to single them out.

"Senator Jack Kennedy (D-Mass) seems to be front running now. Those who are writing him off because of his religion and youth may have to take a re-reading of his popular support continuing the way it has been going."

He called Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo) and Adlai Stevenson, twice defeated by President Eisenhower, dark horse possibilities.

"They seem to fit the role of compromise candidates," Nixon went on. "All are men of ability, but I think the Republican candidate, whoever he is, will win."

His own candidacy? He commented it still is too early to make a decision.

Cairo, 'Little Egypt,' Is a Good Tour for Week-End

ILLINOIS. LITTLE EGYPT is the six-state tour of a Magic Circle tour: the floral beauty and ante-bellum mansions of Cairo; ancient Indian mounds, orchard and berry country; the Illinois Ozark land of scenic drives and fishing; Carbondale, coal industry, center and home of Southern Illinois University; Murphysboro and its Apple Festival; Chester's historic covered bridge; Kaskaskia Island, where the "Liberty Bell of the West" is enshrined; Ste. Genevieve, Missouri—a bit of old France; the "Ten Mile Rose Garden" road into Cape Girardeau—near here the Trail of Tears State Park is being created to commemorate the tragic trek of the Cherokees from Georgia to Oklahoma.

Editor's Note: This is the 28th in a series of suggested highway tour maps which the Hope Star is publishing weekly. This is excellent material to cut out and paste up in a scrapbook for future reference when planning your vacation trip.

(By EDWARD COLLIER)
Cairo, the Illinois town that, by latitude, is south of Louisville, Kentucky and Richmond, Virginia is as offbeat in its visitor attractions as it is in its intentional Egyptian name.

Snuggled into the "Y" of a fertile delta where the mighty Mississippi and Ohio Rivers join this little southland city of magnolias once was a key point in the Union's Civil War strategy against the Confederacy.

Modern Cairo still shows the influence of Kentucky, just across the river, in its southern architecture, speech and easy tempo of life. Quaint French town with German immigrant overtones, and strange to the rest of Missouri, to the north are forest lands, historic Indian mounds, a National Wildlife refuge and high, scenic bluffs that overlook the Father of Waters, first explored by Marquette, Joliet and LaSalle.

The composite provides a varied and engrossing week-end Magic Circle trip from a six-state area, for Cairo is in an orb that also includes Indiana, Tennessee and Arkansas.

Mammoth concrete levees, resembling ramparts, protect the city from the encroaching rivers. Bridges that rise like steel skeletons across that great waterway bring good highways into "Little Egypt." Cairo's name was chosen by early day settlers who recognized the resemblance of this warm spot to the accounts they had read of the Nile delta in the Land of the Pharaohs.

Fragrant Little Egypt
Almost heart-shaped, this southern bit of Illinois offers a profusion of magnolias, mimosa and tropical flowers. Ante-bellum homes were built in a grand manner during an elegant era.

The red brick Alexander County Courthouse is a classic example of this period, its dignity defined with tall white pillars, deeply recessed arched windows, wide steps and an iron balustraded balcony.

Southern colonial showplaces, with ample sweeping verandas, are set in exquisite gardens shaded by red maple, magnolia and rare gingko trees imported from China. Magnolia Manor, restored by the Cairo Historical Association, is graciously trimmed with iron lacework. The Mississippi Parkway Museum (formerly the Dr. Rendleman home) is a large white mansard-roofed mansion. It resembles an old-time steamboat with a saucy picket fence that seems to keep it landlocked.

Master Plan For Air Defense Is Hit By Solons

WASHINGTON (AP)—The administration's new master plan for air defense has met with little enthusiasm among some senators who have been critical of defense policies.

The plan, outlined by Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy Friday, involves a shift in emphasis from defense against manned bombers to defense against the near-spawning missiles of the future.

"It would cut back funds for the rival anti-aircraft missiles of the Army and Air Force, the Nike-Hercules and the Bomarc. It would add funds to the Army's Nike-Zeus program, aimed at eventual development of missiles to knock down enemy intercontinental missiles."

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) gave general approval. He is chairman of the Armed Services Committee which provided Pentagon officials with the new strategy.

Russell estimated about 1½ billion dollars would be saved by the Nike-Hercules and Bomarc cutbacks.

But Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.), a frequent critic of administration defense policies, called the new plan ridiculous and a continuation of a reduced basis of the previous master compromise of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) engaged in long debate with Secretary McElroy in the closed-door session of the committee. He talked about the new program as well as what parts of it could be disclosed without endangering national security, other commitments.

Later Symington told newsmen the revised plan "at best is but a compromise effort to satisfy each of the quarrelling services. It guarantees further waste of billions of dollars."

Sen. Francis Case (R-S.D.) teamed with Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.) in asking testimony from top air defense officers before the Senate acts on the proposed cutbacks.

In spite of McElroy's testimony, there still was considerable confusion over just what the dollar cutbacks would mean to the Hercules and Bomarc programs.

The interservice struggle over the merits of these anti-aircraft weapons was what touched off the debate over the new program, which was approved by President Eisenhower before it reached Congress.

East of U. S. 51, and across The Big Muddy, we look Hickory Road to the "Grand Canyon of Illinois."

A short hike from the U. S. Forest Service tower takes you to the enchanting "Garden of Eden."

It's only a stone's throw across the canyon, and yet the fern-covered walls rise 200 feet above the floor. Wild flowers of a hundred varieties grow in every nook.

After rains, a waterfall races over rock terraces. Beech, linden, birch and maple trees complete the sylvan picture.

The return road down Alto Pass hugs the side of a deep valley, submerged with pink peach blossoms in spring, to Cobden. Seven miles north is another intriguing side trip, this one through Makanda to Giant City State Park. As New York's Wall Street is known to its colorful canyon; these parks to its colorful sandstone formations, containing yellow, brown and red, some several hundred feet up from the "streets" that separate them.

We continued our detour on to Crab Orchard Lake, an attractive place to play, rest and camp on warm summer days. The National Wildlife Refuge has set aside areas for water sports, fishing and hunting ducks and geese.

The Magic Circle curves west (Illinois 13) to Carbondale, a coal industry center and home of Southern Illinois University. Here the first Memorial Day was observed in 1880. Murphysboro, 16 miles beyond, provides old-fashioned fun in September at the annual Apple Festival with its pie baking contests, beauty queen and a kiddie parade.

Historic Bridge
A delight to photographers and artists is the sturdy covered bridge which has been preserved four miles east of Chester. Legends of murders and stage coach robberies have been built round this 105-year old wooden span, closed to traffic since 1930, and now a favorite spot for a sheltered picnic.

The original town of Kaskaskia, first capital of the state, was destroyed a century ago when the Mississippi changed its course, farming what is today known as Kaskaskia Island—only spot in Illinois west of Old Man River. The brick State Memorial Building on the island houses the "Liberty Bell of the West" which clanged jubilantly on the night George Rogers Clark took over Fort Kaskaskia from the British in 1778. It was cast in France 11 years before the Philadelphia bell came from the foundry in England.

From Chester the toll takes you across the Mississippi and northwest to Ste. Genevieve, oldest white settlement in Missouri, where time has slowed down and its charm. The village and its charm. The village and its charm.

MacArthur to Open Jap Hall of Fame

TOKYO (AP)—U. S. Ambassador Douglas MacArthur II showed up today to open Japan's first baseball hall of fame with a slight limp from playing baseball. The American envoy explained:

"It appears to be limping a bit today. It's because of baseball. Last Saturday the embassy and I played an informal game with the Gaimusho (foreign office) and I played a little bit. I discovered that I am not as young as I used to be. It was a hard game, however, even though the Gaimusho beat us 15 to 8."

Rains Bring Damage Over Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Heavy rains were blamed today for a cave-in which blocked a mile-long Missouri-Pacific Railroad tunnel in Boone County.

The collapse of about 125 tons of rock from the tunnel roof followed a mammoth thunderstorm which swept across the state last night, causing damage expected to total thousands of dollars.

Authorities said the tunnel, near Crick in north Arkansas, was blocked by a cave-in just minutes after a southbound train passed through the tunnel. A northbound train was held up at Colter as crews worked to open the tunnel.

A Missouri-Pacific official in Little Rock said he was sure the roof collapse resulted from effect of recent heavy rains. He said rock falls are not unusual in the mountainous territory.

Railroad officials said clearing of the tunnel was expected to take at least 24 hours.

Last night's storm cut off nine miles from long-distance telephone service and left roads and highways by the area littered with trees and limbs. Roots were lifted and windows smashed by high winds, reported at gusts up to 50 miles an hour in some places.

Telephone and power company crews, who worked through the night, were expected to have all service restored by noon today.

There were no serious injuries. A Fort Smith girl, Linda Bertlett, 18, was slightly hurt when her car struck a tree top-placed by the storm.

In Berryville, apparently hardest hit by the storm, power was partly restored this morning and crews were working to remove trees. Highway 62 was blocked by a fallen tree for a time last night.

One Berryville building, a tractor and implement company, collapsed under the strong winds. All Lodge building on the Berryville square was uninjured, with parts of the tin roof dumped on a neighboring cafe.

Four airplanes at the Fort Smith airport, one of them a 24-passenger DC3 owned by Braniff Airlines, were damaged.

Governor Speaks To Alabama Legislature

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Arkansas Gov. Orval B. Faubus told the Alabama Legislature yesterday that the segregation issue is "only one facet of the fight for states rights."

And Faubus said racial problems have been "highlighted" all out of proportion to their importance.

The Arkansas governor told a joint session of the Legislature that the U. S. Supreme Court is whittling away the "safeguards of liberty" which were written into the federal constitution. Faubus spoke for 70 minutes and was interrupted frequently by applause.

He cited recent Supreme Court decisions which have upheld the rights of Communists, then added:

"But if we (Southerners) speak up in our sincere belief in segregation, we are persecuted."

Faubus said that the Supreme Court's recent ruling that health inspectors can search a home without a warrant, meant that "all that would have to be done by a tyrannical government that might spring up in Washington is to loathe its agents in the guise of health inspectors looking for rats."

Then, he said, Americans would have no more freedom than Russians or the Germans under Nazism.

Giving away fundamental states rights one at a time is like agreeing to the demands of Soviet Russia one at a time, Faubus said.

In an interview before the speech Faubus told newsmen Arkansas people are standing firm in their resistance to compulsory integration.

He said he did not believe taken together was possible Little Rock or elsewhere.

In narrow streets are a bit of old France. "Doubourg Place" the public square is dominated by the Courthouse and the lovely church and its paintings, brought from France nearly 200 years ago.

Interesting Creole structures open to visitors are the Norman-roofed Peter Bolduc House (circa 1770), an authentic and complete French colonial residence; the stone Italian Trading Post, which holds old copper utensils and other pioneer relics; the Mammy Show House, now a restaurant, whose large double doors are supposed to have been relieved from a "sunk" steamboat; and the Brick Building, now a hotel.

The Magic Circle, located back south (U. S. 61) from Jackson to Cape Girardeau, the "planned rose-restored" roadway is suitably called the "Ten Mile Garden." Cape Girardeau, another early French settlement, was later governed by the Spanish then taken over by American families and German immigrants — the latter leaving their stamp on the community with one-and-a-half story houses of stone and red brick "bull" flush with the side walks, their starkness relieved by cast-iron balconies.

huge land forces which NATO members were supposed to produce never materialized. And, meanwhile, something else happened which made even the fairly small land forces they produced look even smaller.

The Soviets and the United States both developed missiles for crossing continents. Even President Eisenhower acknowledged last March that Allied armies in Europe did not mean much any more because they were overwhelmingly outnumbered by the Soviet Union.

The United States, with its fleets of bombers and their hydro-bomb based on friendly stations around the Soviet perimeter, can still discourage a Soviet attack. This is still a consolation to the NATO members.

But it is a mixed consolation because of one thing: The world is in a transition period, passing from the day of the bomber to the era of the missile.

The United States is arranging to surround the Soviet Union again at friendly stations on Allied soil—with bases for missiles which have their noses pointed at Moscow. In time, when there are enough missiles, the bombers will be obsolete.

But the Soviets are building in the Soviet Union their own bases for missiles pointed westward. In time, with enough hydrogen-headed missiles, Khrushchev could destroy Western Europe.

But it's a pipe-dream if the West thinks the United States can build missile bases right next door to the Soviet Union. And that the Soviets will keep all its own missile bases strictly inside the Soviet Union.

Khrushchev showed what a pipe-dream it is by warning Turkey and Greece, both NATO members, not to permit American missile bases in their territory unless they want him to build missile bases right next door in the Soviet satellites, Albania and Bulgaria.

And Thursday he cautioned two other NATO members—Norway and Denmark—against permitting missile bases within their frontiers. He indirectly proposed that they get out of NATO altogether.

Ambassadors for these four NATO members he proposed to Greece and Turkey that there be a nuclear-free, missile-free zone from Central Europe to the Mediterranean, to Norway and Denmark he proposed a similar nuclear-free zone, Scandinavia.

It is perhaps significant that Khrushchev, Stalin's successor, is trying to terrorize Greece and Turkey. Stalin tried the same in another way, back in the late 1940's.

Stalin tried to shake Berlin free of the Western grip in 1949. Now, 10 years later, when he feels strong enough, Khrushchev is trying to shake Berlin free of the West.

As Soviet missile power grows, destroyed 2,700 miles of hay near Siloam Springs. Lightning also was blamed for a fire which burned electric lines and a wooden building near Pine Bluff.

Rapidly rising creeks fed by heavy showers flooded quickly, after the rain ended early today. Towns cut off from long-distance telephone service were Berryville, Onk, Groves, St. Joe, Bull Shoals, Yellville, Lakeview, Flippin, and Alpena, and Eureka Springs, where service was restored this morning. A total of 1,100 telephones were knocked out in six other cities including Fort Smith.

Damage to telephone lines alone was estimated at more than $10,000.

Rain stopped and the wind diminished early today as the storm moved out of the state. More thunderstorms were predicted for tonight and tomorrow, however.

These days, the mother of the bride is young in appearance as well as in spirit. Knowing this, designers have departed far from the old concept of what the mother of the bride would wear and turned out chic and beautiful dresses that are pure flattery. Most of them can lead a double life: after the wedding, they'll go to parties and dinners. A sheath (left) in aqua gros de Londres has slim lines balanced by a floating back panel of sheer chiffon. Dress of pale yellow taffeta (center) has wide skirt inset of shirred organza. Both skirt and neckline are appliqued in Alencon lace. Pale blue sheath (right) is Alencon lace re-embroidered in a feathery motif. Front skirt tiers are in organza. All designs shown here are by Jobere.

Long overblouse is combined with short shorts in a cotton knit by Alamac for summer fun. Stripe inset on the blouse is matched to side stripe on the shorts.—By GAIL DUGAS, NEA Women's Editor.

DOROTHY DIX
Friends Not So Sage
On Marriageable Age

Dear Dorothy Dix: I would like your honest opinion about the right age to marry. My friends tell me a couple should wait until they are 23 to 25. They argue that by then young people have had the opportunity to develop their personalities to the fullest, have met many different types of people, probably have traveled, etc. They say that if two people are really in love they shouldn't mind waiting a year or two before marrying. I agree to a certain extent, but why wait? I am 19 years old, have a good job, nice friends, and a fiancé of 23 who also has a good job. We want to get married in the fall and feel that we are emotionally and financially capable of carrying the responsibilities that go with marriage. Is this a false idea? Margaret D.

Dear Margaret: Your friends rather overestimate the right age for marriage. Too young marriages are, it is true, often disastrous, but a girl of 19 and a young man of 23 should know their own minds. You and your fiancé have reached a decision after much thought and consultation. You have weighed your friends' advice—and found it wanting. Now use your own judgment. I'm sure it's reliable.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I've taken a summer job as clerk in a store. I worked there a week before I fell in love with the other clerk, a dreamboat who is also working for the summer. He made a date with me but when he stayed outside the house and blew his horn, my parents wouldn't let me go.

and as Khrushchev steps up his campaign to keep American missile bases out of NATO countries, those countries will feel more and more pressure to cut loose from NATO since, if war came, they'd be the nearest targets.

The world may be pulled by Khrushchev's tactics over Berlin right now. But you can be sure this is just the beginning of a concentrated campaign to be carried on for years to shake NATO to pieces.

And even one of the NATO signatories, France, who also has a structure shudder this week when President Charles de Gaulle insisted upon having control over any nuclear stockpiles this country wanted to set up in France.

Thursday's Show Draws
Much PraiseBy WILLIAM ELWALD
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—After having glue poured on your emotions all week by TV, it's a pleasure to face off against a play that stretches your feelings, tones your senses, giddys your brain.

This is a rare review from Thursday night's CBS-TV Playhouse 90, a Loring Mandel drama, "Project Immortality." So let me rave.

Mandel picked up the threads of some terribly improbable dramatic material—the attempt to duplicate the brain of a dying mathematical genius on a calculator—and wove those threads into one of the most moving offerings on TV this season.

It was a stunning piece of craftsmanship—tightly knit, deftly dialogued, artful in its characterizations, stuffed with warm insight and passion.

It succeeded because it was not just a story about a man being turned into a machine but rather a keen telling of another kind of transformation, of a man passing on the legacy of his life to another young man and in the process changing the young machine man into a fellow human being.

Mandel worked most of this magic with the simplest of devices. He hung the entire piece on the scaffold of the dying man's life within his family and in doing so, created a household miles apart from the usual bakelite, daron, foam rubber TV tributes.

With a few short strokes, Mandel rattled a family bursting with reality and vigor, a family that very early in the play lived in the nature of the dying man. The shoddy writer tells us a man is intelligent or loved or important.

Mandel, however, did it the way of the non-cheating writer: he showed us intelligence and love and importance and he did it cleanly and painlessly. It was a superb example of play-making.

None of the effectiveness of "Project Immortality" would have been possible, of course, without his players. Lee Cobb as the dying genius carved out a portrait that had a large touch of genius itself. Cobb was not only immense in his physical portrayal of a man being sapped gradually of his vigor, he was positively awesome in rounding out the man, of trotting out his insides for the screen.

The rest of the cast was blotted out somewhat by Cobb, but their performances were quite sturdy. I should single out Kenneth Hahn and Gusti Huber and in particular, Ian, Michael London, who as Cobb's son, played a terribly tricky scene near the close with great skill.

The Channel Swim! Keep Talking will shift from CBS-TV to ABC-TV beginning Tuesday, Sept. 29, there's a good chance that ABC-TV's Naked City, scheduled to be pulled the end of this summer, may stay on the network next fall in a Sunday night spot.

George Fenneman takes over as emcee for the vacationing A. J. Linkette on CBS-TV's House Party from June 19 to July 20. NBC-TV will offer a two-part version of Budd Schulberg's "What Makes Sammy Run?" on Oct. 4 and 11 as part of its new Sunday Showcase series. Budd Schulberg has written the TV adaptation in collaboration with his wife, Sylvia.

He receives affidavits showing employees have signed statements they have paid or don't owe state income tax.

The affidavits are required under a 1959 legislative act which became effective yesterday. Mid-night was the filing deadline.

Transatlantic Plane
Snowaway to Return

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The first transatlantic plane snowaway makes his second flight to Paris Saturday.

Arthur Schreiber, now 52, is flying to the French capital as a guest of Air France.

On June 13, 1929, when he was 22, he stowed aboard the "Yellow Bird" as three Frenchmen, Jean Assolant, Rene Lefevre and Armand Lotli, took off in the single-engine plane from Old Orchard, Maine, for Paris. They arrived in Paris 33 hours later.

Lefevre, now an executive of Air France, arranged Schreiber's trip to celebrate the 30th anniversary of the flight.

FISH STORY: BARRACUDA
HOOKS MAN
By A. McCLANE
Fishing Editor

Retrieve a lure slowly, particularly when working for fish, which commonly follow a bait for long distances before striking.

When we think of predictable lure fishers, two species that come to mind are the northern pike in freshwater and the barracuda in salt water. They'll splash water in your face with a last-second attack.

The fish will hit just before the lure reaches the boat. Most anglers have experienced at least one aerial attack — with the pike or barracuda leaping at the bait as it's lifted from the water. It's very difficult to hook a fish when just a few feet of line is extended from the rod tip.

Usually you can tease them into striking before that vulnerable second by stopping the retrieve and letting the lure sit. Usually the fish will think his quarry is helpless and one little twitch of the bait is enough to draw a resounding strike. Predatory fish are cautious because if their food is real they have plenty of time to size it up and make certain nobody stuck a hook in it.

This characteristic caused what was probably the most unusual angling accident we have heard of in many years.

Lorenzo Mills, 42, and Willie Stevenson, 38, were fishing off Miami from a 14-foot outboard when the accident occurred. Mills described it to doctors who put six stitches in his neck.

"I was sitting up in the bow reeling in my line just after I felt something hit my neck real hard. The next thing I saw was the barracuda must have been two feet long — jumping back into the water. I didn't even know I was hurt until Willie said to me, 'That fish cut your throat man!'

The blood-soaked Mills had a three-inch gash in his neck which missed his jugular vein by one inch.

The chances of such an accident happening again must be one in a billion. But as long as your lure is in the water some open-mouthed critter is going to be disturbed by it.

Give him a chance to make up his mind.

lateral the girls in shorts.

Lellani was in gay spiffs. "Said he's packing a lunch for us," she announced over the coffee cups. "We're going to put on our swim suits and drive out to Black Sands beach for a picnic and swim."

But Lellani's high spirits collapsed like a punctured balloon when they started. Alex had backed the car out of the garage and she suggested that he drive it since he knew the rough spots in the narrow road.

"Be glad to," Alex said.

"I'll sit with Kathie," Sam said, and look her arm to help her in.

Lellani turned around with so surprised a look that Kathie realized she had expected Sam to make that suggestion to her. But no Sam saw her surprise, he gave no sign, and Lellani quite happily climbed in from beside Alex.

The drive to the beach was over a winding highway, banked with green and lined with tall clumps of yellow and white ginger in full bloom. They climbed steadily, and occasionally the clouds hanging over the volcano Mauna Loa, lifted enough so that they could glimpse the sloping summit.

The spot they chose for picnicking was the most picturesque Kathie had ever seen. A semi-circular beach, ringed with a flowing curve of coconut palms, stretched down to blue water capped with white surf. And the sand was black as night.

Alex told her the sand was pulled black lava from an early eruption of Mauna Loa that had rolled all the way to the sea.

It was not yet dark when they drove up the Powers' driveway, tired and almost hoarse from singing all the way back.

HYDRO JET-BOT OPENS
REMOTE FISHING REAR
By WM. TYLOR MCKEOWN
Editor, Popular Boating
Distributed by NEA Service

A jet-powered family runabout, 16 feet long, fast, safe, easy to handle and with remarkable performance characteristics — this was the report.

We promptly sent a test skipper to Indianapolis to get the details.

Jet-propelled boats are not new. Ever since Archimedes tried out the principle in 250 B.C. there have been attempts to harness this power. Donald Campbell's jet Bluebird II traveled 260 miles an hour.

A family jet that can be safely handled in local harbors is something else again. We were frankly skeptical.

But the report appears to be true, according to initial tests of the prototype boat. Originally designed in New Zealand for running rapids, this interesting craft was tested there by a U.S. scientist returning from the Antarctic. He brought back his enthusiasm to the States. The Buehler Turbocraft Company, a division of the Indianapolis Gear Works, has been formed to produce the boats in this country.

While the first models will be fiberglass runabouts, plans call for a line ranging eventually from 12-foot utilities to 40-footers.

Coming toward you, the Turbo-craft looks like a conventional standard automotive engine, but craft looks like a conventional runabout. It is powered with a standard automotive engine, but this spins a water-pump turbine. Water is sucked through a keel intake and jelled from an outlet in the transom. The bottom of the bodiless sturds or nozzle that could catch on underwater snags.

This is the boat's special advantage. Water three inches deep is all that is necessary when the hull is running up on a plane. The test skipper drove it over brush and stumps, jumped logs that were eight inches out of the water.

Here is a craft that could open up remote fishing areas where normally you would damage a propeller or go aground. It makes possible running rapids and white water no other craft would dare approach.

Maneuverability is excellent. Traveling at 30 miles an hour the boat can turn within its own length, providing the driver's fun of a sports car. Slowed down it responds smoothly to the controls and has none of the steering troubles that have plagued hydro jet craft in the past. Pointing the water stream steers the craft squinting it forward under the hull provides a simple reverse without any shifting of gears.

Turbocraft 16 sells for $3,000, at a price competitive with conventional inboard craft.

It appears to offer a new horizon for pleasure boating.

Top Movie Names Will Invade TV

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This fall will see the biggest invasion of television by top movie names in the history of the medium.

With the 1959-60 season pretty well shaped up, the schedule of new shows indicates a stellar turnout. Stars who can still draw top money in films are turning to the screen's big brother.

The lure is obvious security. They need only observe the fortunes earned by Loretta Young, Jane Wyman, Lucille Ball, Dick Powell, David Niven and others who got into TV. The important factor is not the salaries, but ownership of the series. This can amount to an annuity.

Here are some of the newcomers:

"Robert Taylor's Detectives" (ABC-FR) Taylor plays a captain of detectives in a typical American city.

"June Allyson Theater" (CBS-Miss) An anthology show with Miss Allyson as hostess and part-time star.

"Whispering Smith" (NBC-Mon) Angie Murphy stars as a detective in the first city police force in the West. Guy Mitchell plays his sidekick.

"The Deputy" (NBC-Sat) Henry Fonda appears with Allan Case, Wallace Ford and Betty Lou Keim in a Western adventure show.

"Whitely Town" (NBC-Wed) Joel McCrea plays the marshal with son Jody as his friend, a foreman on a frontier ranch.

"Goldie" (CBS-Thurs) Betty Hutton stars as a mailman who is given the bequest of a fortune. And there may be more.

Lutherans to Fight to Stay in Germany

By SEYMOUR TOPPING
BERLIN (AP) — The Evangelical (Lutheran) church has begun a last-ditch fight for survival in East Germany.

Under mounting Communist attacks, the centralized authority of the old state church is crumbling. The isolated local pastors, now the main guardians of the faith, carry the brunt of the struggle against Communist harassment.

The satellite regime technically still recognizes the official status of the Evangelical faith, but is gnawing away at its foundations through atheist propaganda.

The Christian is being turned into a second-class citizen, says Bishop Otto Dibelius, titular head of the All-Germany church.

Free of Communist persecution has dwindled church attendance at an accelerating rate over the last year. Most youngsters now undergo Communist indoctrination instead of church confirmation.

Church officials express confidence that Christianity will persist in East Germany, but they see the Communist vise inexorably tightening on the church itself.

The Catholic minority faces much the same problem.

The regime has made the Evangelical church its No. 1 domestic target. With 82 per cent of the 18 million East Germans born Evangelical, the church has ranked as the most influential and stubborn voice of freedom in the satellite.

Since the Reds set up their regime in 1949, only 200 pastors have left the country. Without permission of the church, about 5,000 pastors remain, with some 1,000 parish posts vacant.

Outside of the church organization, a church official said, there are countless Christian cells—social groupings of perhaps 8 to 10 people—who keep the faith alive.

The Communists have not yet succeeded in completely splitting the East German branch of the church away from its West German wing.

But now about one-third of the church's hierarchy in East Germany feel they must cooperate with the Communists.

The regime has encouraged this trend by refusing to deal with the State officials who negotiate with East German clergymen and distribute revenues from church taxes only on a district or local level.

Many church officials see this dismemberment of the church as the first step by the Communists towards its dissolution.

It was this anxiety that made Dibelius recently cry out from a pulpit in East Berlin:

"No matter what happens to the Evangelical church, the name of Jesus Christ will never be erased from the life of the German people."

READY FOR A CHANGE

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Roy Holmes Jr., 17-year-old Phoenix grocery clerk, thinks it is about time his luck changed.

A few months ago he cut his left hand with a razor blade. A short time later he fell while skating and broke a wrist. Then he slipped on some grease and broke his right foot.

THIS MEASURE

Here is my watch. If it is to be of value to me, it has to be a watch I can count on. When I look at its face, I must know beyond doubt, that it can be trusted. If I have to be forever checking it, it is of little use to me, and certainly it is not fulfilling the purpose for which it was created. Life too, is that way!

If a man is to be of value, he must be the kind of person that can be counted on. His face must radiate dependability. If those who live about you have to be forever checking on you... you are not fulfilling the purpose for which God created you. Now, Paul said, "those things, which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and seen in me, do; and the God of peace shall be with you."

Help us to attend church worship every week and to draw near to Thee. May we gather in thoughts that stray and control feelings that may be troublesome. For sin give repentance, for sorrow give trust, for strife of passion and care grant rest. Through this timepiece illustration, may we be led to bring our lives to Thee, that we may test and measure them by thine unerring law.

You In The Church
The Church In You
— form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.
